

WOUB Public Media Donor List Policy

WOUB Public Media is rooted in local communities and respond to the needs of those who reside within the television and radio coverage areas. These public broadcasting stations are vital to community resources that provide local, regional and national news, cultural affairs and public service programming to viewers and listeners.

The public stations and their listeners and viewers represent a partnership between Ohio University's public service mission and the communities they serve. Individuals voluntarily contribute to these stations. and WOUB Public Media along with Ohio University, takes very seriously the trust and support of its viewers and listeners.

WOUB Public Media does not and will not sell, rent, lease, loan, trade, donate, transfer or exchange their membership or donor names with political parties, political campaigns, candidates for public office, religious institutions or any other non-profit or for-profit organizations unless required to do so by Federal or State law.

About WOUB Public Media

As a member station of both NPR and PBS, WOUB Public Media is a trusted source of news, local content and educational resources that have proven to be worthy of the time, effort and support of our users. WOUB, an administrative unit of the Scripps College of Communication at Ohio University, is a non-profit, community-supported multimedia organization which provides online and broadcast services, along with non-broadcast educational services and student professional development.